

This is my final work of this week. In this work, to represent a particular situation in such a dynamic scale, I tried to make it look caotic. The scale of people in different images has variety, and that of buildings as well, so that we can see disorganized idea in one picture, and feel individual emotion. There are three images in this picture, and each one of them has the sky.

The sky is the only thing to connect them as well as the only way to compare their scale.

To sum up, I think I could accomplish to make caotic narrative with different three images in one picture by using scale.